Prof. Eber preached in the Christian Church at this place last Sunday evening.

Harlan McClain left yesterday for Northwestern Texas, where he expects to reside in future to his life.

Dr. R. B. Gardner will locate at Frenchburg, sometime within the next few days, and has engaged a bill at the Palace.

Mr. Clark and wife have moved into their residence on Broadway recently purchased of Deputy County Clerk W. C. Evans.

Born—To Rev. D. H. Fallon and wife, on the 18th inst., a daughter—Vivian Lillian. The preacher is proved enough, and will take good care of the little girl.

Mrs. Lou Day, proprietress of the Day House, Iron Works, where iron is now transported to the railroad at a cost of $3 a ton, and still sold at a good profit, mostly for the construction of iron bridges. The iron is of fine grade, used in the construction of iron bridges. Almost all the iron of fine grade is taken here, and at the car wheel works at Jeffersonville.

The Kentucky Union, which was purchased in November by Mr. F. D. Currier and associates of this city, will probably be extended, as originally planned, some time within the next few years. It is the largest and most influential paper of Kentucky, and is so far from the L. and N. extension to Louisville as to preclude any possibility of interference. It will run, extended along any probable route, with a short distance of the Red River from Fries, where iron is now transported to the railroad at a cost of $3 a ton, and still sold at a good profit, mostly for the construction of iron bridges. The iron is of fine grade, used in the construction of iron bridges. Almost all the iron of fine grade is taken here, and at the car wheel works at Jeffersonville.

One of the proposed routes is from Lawrenceburg to Versailles, where a connection will be made with the Versailles, Georgetown and Paris road, on which work will begin in April, and the Versailles will be pushed to an early completion. From Versailles the line will be to Lexington, where the Louisville and Nashville will connect with the C. and O. If a satisfactory freight arrangement can be made; if not, by building a line parallel to the C. and O. From Hodges to Clay City the road is already built. From Clay City the extension will be to some point in the vicinity of Pound Gap or to the Breaks of Sandy by the most desirable route. It can be found, probably taking in Stanton in Powell county, Campion in Wolfe, and Pikeville in Pike.

At the mountain on the Kentucky line a connection will be made with some of the roads of the South.

An engineer, with a corps of assistants, must of course be employed when the route is selected a passage across the mountains. It will make a difference of $30,000 to $100,000 per point is chosen for the route. Pound Gap, often spoken of as a point for crossing, is only a slight depression, and a tunnel would probably be the best and most expensive that could be chosen, as at such a depression the road of the bridge is easily broken.

Any bridge across the Breaks of Sandy must be a trestle bridge, a tunnel at least a mile long. The Breaks of Sandy is a water gap, and can be passed at comparatively small cost. It is only twenty miles north of Pound Gap, the point named in the charter of the Kentucky Union, and the route can be easily changed.

The Kentucky Union will thus connect with the Louisville Southern at Lawrenceburg, and bring Georgetown, Paris and Lexington much nearer to Louisville than they are to Cincinnati, and will secure a large amount of the business trade that now goes to the latter city—Louisville Times.

Our readers are invited to a careful inspection of S. M. Braun's new advertisement in this issue of our paper, in which it will be seen that the "famous user store" of Mt. Sterling has an overplus of everything and that Mr. Braun, to reduce the value of his goods at a fabulous low price. We have had some business dealings with Mr. Braun and know where he is, and we will give our subscribers that he will give you as much goods of good quality and for as little money as you can find in America. If he tells you a piece of goods is all-wool you can let on your own eyes, and when he guarantees anything the guarantee is as good as his word. When you go to Mr. Braun, get a good bargain for something, and after thanking him for sending you there and saving you money. Police clerks will not let you go.

Dr. F. M. Thomas, who has been sojourning at Frenchburg for some time, has a few days last week on business. He left Frenchburg on Monday, and in Clark county, to practice medicine, at which place his wife, and baby Bessie, will join him in April. Dr. Thomas is one of the best physicians in Eastern Kentucky, and the citizens of Ford may feel assured that if it is in the power of medical skill to save their sick they will secure the services of the right man, while his wife will give a companionable pleasant neighbor, and Bessie the most interesting blue-eyed little beauty that ever scampered along the banks of the Kentucky River.

A word reader, about W. A. Word, whose card appears in this paper. He is representing the white and red harness house of Harrison & Gallagher, Louisville. He is a young man, but a business one, and having inherited from his father, W. E. Word, all the qualifications of an affable commercial man, will surely take you right in all dealings you may have with him. Our merchants can not do better than saddle on to him. They want the bridge-path to wealth and wish to stop to riches before old habits of idleness and laziness have time to the harness of idleness. Behn up and check him a bit of an order before your curb is pulled by hard lines.

Judge James Hampton, of Lee county, will join him in April. Dr. Thomas is one of the best physicians in Eastern Kentucky, and the citizens of Ford may feel assured that if it is in the power of medical skill to save their sick they will secure the services of the right man, while his wife will give a companionable pleasant neighbor, and Bessie the most interesting blue-eyed little beauty that ever scampered along the banks of the Kentucky River.

To cure Rheumatism or other pains, take a piece of fish maw, saturate it well with Dr. J. H. The fish maw, or wherever the pain is, and place over it as much heat as possible. Said by Dr. J. H. McLean, Hazel Green, and J. N. Vaughn, Campion.

The following note from Judge J. M. I heartily thank the people of my county for their endorsement, and my friends elsewhere for their expressions of encouragement and esteem."

THE KENTUCKY UNION.

A Region Wonderfully Rich in Minerals, Timber and Coal to be Opened.

By the Road.

Mr. St. John Boyle, who has recently been in New York and immediately upon his return here went to Clay City in the interest of the Kentucky Union road, came back from the latter trip last night. He said in a report for the Times this morning that nothing had yet been accomplished in New York. At Clay City the lumber-mills were about ready to begin operations for the season; also the Red River Iron Works, about nine miles away, which have been idle some time, were expected to resume operations.

The Kentucky Union, which was purchased in November by Mr. F. D. Currier and associates of this city, will probably be extended, as originally planned, some time within the next few years. It is the largest and most influential paper of Kentucky, and is so far from the L. and N. extension to Louisville as to preclude any possibility of interference. J. R. Tuggle, traveling for the firm of F. G. Ringgold & Co., dealers in Boots and Shoes, Cincinnati, O., has a card in this paper to which the special attention of merchants is invited.

The house carries in stock all kinds of goods for the pedal extremities, from a full grown brogan to the tiniest Cinderella slipper, and Mr. Tuggle can take your order as courteously as you will find it a pleasure to deal with him. Be sure and give Tuggle an order if you want something that your customers will delight in tugging home, and something that will wear well.

Answering our complaint in last week's issue about the delay of papers on the mail route between this place and Cincinnati, the postmaster of the latter place writes us that he always sends the mail from his office but has been informed in the case we hope the Inspector of Post routes and Postoffice will investigate it and put a stop to it as soon as possible.

From private letters received at this place from Mount Sterling, in a Braxhill, we learn that Day Bros., of that place, last week, for $1,500 and $2,000 worth of goods, mostly for the construction of iron bridges. The iron is of fine grade, used in the construction of iron bridges. Almost all the iron of fine grade is taken here, and at the car wheel works at Jeffersonville.

Red River has been acting very badly and disregarding all the laws of prohibition. No longer ago than last Wednesday night she got as full as the average bum at an election, and on Thursday morning her swollen condition gave evidence of the dissipation indulged in the night before. She had actually got out of her clothes—her bonnet, blouse and braces—and in her bloated condition—valued the bottom near town. In her recklessness she knocked down fences, staggered over plowed ground and played havoc generally. For lack of liquid she began to sober up during the afternoon, and Friday morning was arrayed in her customary attire. Several of our citizens, however, who happened to be close enough for a critical inspection, tell us that her skirts were all bunched and dirty, and that her usually handsome face had a muddy cast, the result of Thursday's debauch, when she was wallowing in the mire. Some of our citizens saw her late Friday afternoon, and they testify that she had a clear, clear countenance and was dressed in a becoming style, her skirts being trimmed with old gold and green. This announcement was hailed with joy, and that hope which springs eternal in the human breast led all to believe that the frail female had reformed. All were willing to forgive her for the ruin wrought and assist in repairing the damage done, if she loved one would desert from her dissipation and in future act with becoming modesty. Alas, how vain is hope. With her it was the same old story. Once started in a downward career it is hard to check the pursuit of its course. Just when our people were congratulating themselves that this dissipated woman was acting with decency, the news came that she was again filling up, and late Saturday evening was seen in the vicinity of town maddeningly striding. Wild with rage she bore down rails upon her tumbled bosom, and farmers above report that she has carried away fencing and been seen wrestling with saw logs in her mad frenzy. Those who know her best say that she is as bad as ever, and that she is almost sure to take a fall in extremely wet weather, but claim that she will retire in some months to her home, where she will appear in a costume throughout the season as gorgeous and grand as the festivities of the East cannot wear its counterpart. Others are unforgiving, and abuse her in every term for the wrong she has done and the casualties she has caused, while the poor weeping wretch, who has stood beside her as a guardian angel since her birth, shed tears of sorrow at her shame. The woman is a sad, sad story, but true every word of it. The man or woman who takes the false step will continue to slide down the incline, unless strong will power is exercised and the appetite overcome in its infancy. But no matter how far you have traveled the run-hedge road to ruin, you can stop and turn about and reform.

HAZEL GREEN is destined to have a great number of visitors here this summer on account of the health-giving mineral waters which abound and the pure mountain air, and our hotel proprietors and boarding-house keepers may well begin to prepare to entertain them. The Swamp water, which has hitherto brought many to this place, was last year in such a limited quantity that the proprietors of the springs had to save the supply for their own borders. Now, however, it is different. There was recently a spring discovered upon the land of Judge G. B. Swango, which lies near town, containing the same water as at least it was so pronounced by all who have tasted it, and we are of opinion, after having drunk of it, that the two are identical in their taste and properties. Judge Swango authorizes us to announce to those seeking health through the agency of this water, that it is absolutely free to all who wish to drink it, and that as many boarding houses wish to entertain visitors to this place can have it on the same terms. Thus it will be seen that there is no lack of the life-regulating liquid, and all who are ailing with indigestion, constipation, a torpid liver, &c., should start for our board. The town will afford accommodations for just two hundred guests at any one time, but should it be found necessary a commodious hotel with modern appointments will be erected in the early spring. Come to Hazel Green, all who are afflicted, and partake of the elixir that cures health and the blood of youth. In fact, while Ponce de Leon's Eldorado only did so in fancy.

Frankfort is settling the building of a railroad from Frankfort to Prestonsburg, a distance of 100 miles. The road to run through Georgetown, Paris, Mt. Sterling and Sublettsville—West Liberty.

Now, Governor, why cut Hazel Green out of the route, when you know it has been settled that it will run this way? You know Floyd Byrns insisted that you could certainly not be so "ungodly" as to deprive us of our only route. No, no, God, don't do that; you might want to locate here yourself when Hazel Green becomes the railroad center of Eastern Kentucky and the metropolis of the mountains. We do not pine for the country seat, but we are biding for all the railroad sites in sight, and you can cut this out to remind you of the fact whenever your fancy comes to wander that the above road—and more of 'em—will not come here.
